A social/break lounge for many employees needed to be located in a long space connecting buildings. The Linear Series provided a variety of individual spaces and small groupings in a clean, architectural floor plan, illustrated below.

Inward miter sections provide the L sections framing each area, creating three smaller rooms; outward miter sections make the central island. This well organized space is quite versatile: the seating units can be easily rearranged for social events. Or they can be recombined for future use in different locations.

Seat and back cushions are reversible and covers for all components—frames, arms, and cushions—are replaceable for cleaning or changing to new decor. See the Linear Series for additional features, options and a complete listing of forms.
