

Architectural & Design Firm
Reception Area
Chicago, Illinois

A small lobby area needed definition as an architectural space as well as maximizing the reception area for clients. Miter corner seating sections from the Linn[®] Series provided the forms to meet all of their needs, achieving a custom look with standard products.

Shape and perspective of the space is emphasized by the continuous sweep of the miter sections which meet at 45° angles at the back corners. The definition of the upper back and middle lumbar support, with the fully upholstered frame style, illustrate how seating can become a complementary architectural form as well as comfortable seating.

The miter sections are one of over 60 forms available in the Linn Series, all with on-site replaceable covers.
