Broward County, Florida

Colors of a tropical seashore greet passengers arriving in Ft. Lauderdale Airport. Flowers and patterns of waves on a beach set a holiday mood for thousands of people travelling each day.

Laurel Series curved seating groups not only echo the wave motif, but also provide a variety of places for passengers and families to relax.

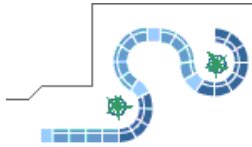

Shown at left, with floor plan right: Lounge opposite the security gates shows seating for 78 people, left picture at a quiet moment. Photo below shows normal traffic opposite the security gates.

Flexibility to fit seating into almost any space—by ticket counters, escalators, telephones, shops, security and lounges—the Laurel Series yields comfortable places for individuals or groups. Inward and outward segment chairs in true circle arcs, plus rectangular chairs, tables and segment tables keep design continuity throughout the lounge areas.

Replaceable Covers

Maintenance of high use areas and replacement of damaged upholstery is easy with the Laurel Series, whose replacement covers may be changed on site for all seating units.

Security Connections

Seating areas are designed in a variety of curvilinear shapes, around corners of the building, or freestanding islands. Simple or complex groups are locked together with special security connections. Their security base system (patents pending), is engineered to join frame bases in a complete wood to wood connection, available on all models. The SB system features high performance black thermoplastic material, designed to withstand impact in high use public areas. Connectors overlap unit connections, creating a clean continuous base surface.
